Mapping Georgia's Natural, Cultural and Historic Organizations for Disaster Response

This is a publicly editable directory of Georgia's Natural, Cultural and Historic Organizations (NCHs), allowing for quick retrieval of location and contact information for disaster response. Directory information is compiled, updated, and uploaded directly to Wikidata, the linked open data database from Wikimedia Foundation. Directory information is then delivered to this website where emergency responders can quickly search for NCHs in disaster areas.

Our project is super cool!!!

GitHub Archive Program: the journey of the world's open source code to the Arctic

The journey of the world's open source code to the Arctic Circle

Your code's journey begins in Piql's facility in Drammen, Norway where the boxes with 186 film reels were shipped to Oslo Airport and then loaded into the belly of the plane which provides passenger service to Svalbard. Svalbard, roughly 600 miles (1000 km) north of the European mainland, just recently opened up to visitors from countries within the Schengen Area and the European Economic Area.

Discussion: “Published” Email Addresses

- GaNCH was designed to only use “published” information visible on the public web
 - Many organizations are no longer publishing their email addresses on their websites, instead often relying on web-based forms
 - In Wikidata, you are supposed to provide a reference for all facts
- How do we identify and use email addresses that aren’t published on the web, given Wikidata’s reference requirements?

Up Next...

- Submit final report to LYRASIS, tomorrow
- Finish prep, ingest, and QC of the final datasets
- Continue building out website for emergency responders' access
- Work with GALILEO/GPLS on the annual email update workflow
- Continue outreach/marketing efforts
- Transition Partners meeting to every six months
- Next Meeting:
